Torrington Store Moving to Great Barrington

TORRINGTON — When Main Street Marketplace closed down this week for the final time this summer, so too did another Main Street business.

This & That, an assorted goods shop specializing in sports memorabilia and collectibles, is relocating to Great Barrington, Massachusetts.

This & That is owned and run by Reggie Davis and wife Crystal, who have been at the 55 Main St. location for two years. Prior to that, Davis' shop had operated in Winsted for eight years.

It is a bittersweet goodbye for Davis, who has devoted the last decade of his life to the business in the neighboring Winsted and Torrington communities. He will return to Great Barrington, 50 minutes north of Torrington, where he grew up and attended high school. Davis said he still has family and friends there.

"I built this up, this business. I did all this on my own and it took a lot of time and it took everything I had. I'm going to miss everything and I just want all my friends, family to come and share this with me," Davis said.

He's invited friends, family and customers alike to come and take in the final moments of This & That in Torrington.

"I want to personally thank each one of them," he said. "These customers over 10 years, you build a relationship, a friendship with some of these people."

The new store, Davis said, will retain the name and spirit of Torrington's This & That. He is currently looking at several locations in Great Barrington but is unsure if he'd like to expand the size of the store.

Davis' goal is not to bring anything to the new location and start off with all new merchandise. This past week, he attempted to clear the decks by selling his goods at a reduced price.

"I'm trying to sell everything," Davis said. "I'm not giving it away, but it's close."

TORRINGTON — A local piano shop on Main Street is closing its doors and relocating at the end of the month.

Beyer Music has operated at 449 Main St. for 32 years, with its 33rd anniversary set for Sept. 15. But the company won't stick around in its current space when that date rolls around, owner Ken Beyer said. Beyer said he is packing up shop and moving the operations to his home in Torrington.

"We're downsizing. We're moving the store into our house," Beyer said. "We have some pianos we're going to have to bring to the house."

The store is currently selling all of its inventory at reduced prices.

Beyer said he and his wife, Betsy, will not have a showroom in their house, but their services will be the same.

The shop sells pianos, organs and sheet music, as well as offering piano moving and organ repairs. The Beyers said they will shift their focus to their website, beyermusic.net, which was designed by their son, Chris. The site will be where they showcase the store's products and manage their social media program. According to a release from the family, the website has helped bring in more business.

"People are buying on the Internet; we're losing a lot of business as a result of that," Ken Beyer said. "We want to do the same thing. So we are going to be selling on the Web too."
